Is weekly attendance compulsory?

Cadets are expected to make a commitment to the Unit and part of the commitment is to attend all activities. This includes weekly meetings, excursions and camps. There are some camps activities offered as options and whilst attendance at these activities is optional it is enthusiastically encouraged. It is accepted that there are times when a cadet has a valid reason for not attending and these reasons should be communicated to the Chief Instructor before the activity. Occasionally, at exam times, Cadets may take leave to study.

What do we do each week?

The weekly activities are many and varied and include – drill, games, BBQs, research, community service, camp preparation, teamwork, guest speakers. Cadets are also required to complete Logbooks which record their learning experiences and their achievements.
